WILD THING!

BEAUTY VS BEAST

Obviously we're all for the crazy stuff here at FC, but how's this for a mental challenge? A young lady taking on the fastest animals on the planet in her Ford Fiesta!

Okay, it's a bit of a strange experiment I know, but it all makes sense when you find out the lady in question is top British rally driver Louise Cook, and she certainly isn't one to turn down a race!

It all kicked off at this month's Celebration of Speed in Kent, where Louise took her championship spec Fiesta rally car and lined up against the quickest the animal kingdom had to offer. Challengers to the princess of the BRC Challenge series included a peregrine falcon, which can swoop at over 200mph and a cheetah – the world's fastest land mammal, which can hit 0-60 in just 2.8 seconds and run at up to a national speed limit busting 75mph! Blimey!

Over the tough sprint course Louise ended up coming in second, just 0.2 of a second behind Boumani the cheetah, but kicking the arses of a falcon, greyhound and American eagle!

So there you go, when it comes to rally sprints presumably what you want isn't a motor it's a pet Cheetah... you don't get that kinda consumer advice on Animal Hospital do ya? Have some of that Rolf!

WTF?

Apart from the actual race, it seems this celebration saw birds of prey trained to seek out dodgy haircuts, rare Mongolian fighting tortoises and even a spot of dogging dressed up as wild animals. Check it out!
